Soundcore has become one of the fastest-growing names in consumer audio by focusing on what matters most to everyday users: strong sound quality, modern features, long battery life, and pricing that feels accessible without sacrificing performance. Backed by Anker, the global charging and mobile accessory leader, Soundcore continues expanding across headphones, earbuds, speakers, and smart audio products while building a loyal customer base online and at major retailers.

The brand's assortment spans everything from open-ear and sleep earbuds to portable speakers, AI smart products, and Nebula projectors, giving it a broader lifestyle position than traditional audio brands alone. Soundcore delivers practical, feature-driven technology designed for daily routines, travel, workouts, entertainment, and work life without overcomplicating the experience.

Kate Spade has built a strong identity around approachable luxury, combining polished design with playful personality across handbags, wallets, jewelry, and fashion accessories. Known for its feminine aesthetic, recognizable branding, and broad department store presence, the brand continues to resonate with consumers looking for products that feel elevated, wearable, and easy to incorporate into everyday life.

Positioned within the accessible luxury category, Kate Spade balances fashion with practicality through products designed for repeat use rather than trend-only moments. Its assortment brings recognizable style into categories people already use daily, making the brand feel both aspirational and approachable across a wide range of gifting audiences.

Lola Blankets has quickly become one of the most recognized names in premium home comfort by pairing ultra-soft faux fur with thoughtful craftsmanship and modern design. Best known for its signature blankets, the brand has built a loyal following through products that feel indulgent, giftable, and designed to become everyday favorites.

Every Lola Blanket is created with comfort, quality, and design in mind. Ultra-soft faux fur, OEKO-TEX® Standard 100 certified materials, four-way stretch construction, double hemmed edges, and machine washable care come together to create products that are made to be used and enjoyed every day. Contemporary colors and textures complete the experience, bringing comfort that looks as good as it feels.
